I. Overview of the Department

The Occupational Therapy Department is exclusively a graduate program and offers a Master of Science degree in Occupational Therapy. The curriculum is designed to prepare graduate students as generalist practitioners of occupational therapy. The coursework also prepares the graduate student for leadership roles, which include educator roles with consumers of services, other professionals and paraprofessionals as well as occupational therapy students and staff in a variety of health and human resource agency settings; additionally, students are prepared with knowledge of program development, administrative, supervisory and management roles in health and human resource agency settings.

The San Jose State University Occupational Therapy Department has a nationally recognized reputation for educating strong clinicians and leaders in the field. We expect our faculty to support this mission. This is accomplished by faculty engagement in teaching, scholarly/artistic/professional achievement, and in service.

Unsatisfactory: During the period of review, the candidate has not documented service activities that meet the baseline level described below during the period under review.

Baseline: During the period of review, the candidate has undertaken a fair share of the workload required to keep the Department functioning well. This includes activities such as work on department committees, the creation or revision of curricula, the assessment of student learning outcomes, or participating in department planning, accreditation, outreach, and advising. A baseline level of achievement for promotion to Professor will also include at least some service at the University level. Additionally, the candidate is a member of state and national organizations and supports the professional organization; for example, the candidate documents attendance at a seminar OR conference sponsored by state, national, or international professional organizations.

Good: During the period of review, the candidate has also participated in significant service activities beyond the department. This will usually include college-level service and may include University level service (for example, service on the Academic Senate), service in the community, or significant activities in a professional organization. In at least one facet of service, the candidate will have demonstrated leadership resulting in tangible, documented achievements. The demonstration of leadership capacity in a professional organization can be seen by participating as a reviewer for conference proposals at professional conferences, professional publications such as Critically Appraised Papers (CAP) or Critically Appraised Topics (CAT) OR reviewing manuscripts for professional journals, OR serving on professional boards, for example: Psychiatric Occupational Therapy Association of California (POTAC) , Occupational Therapy Association of California (OTAC), California Foundation of Occupational Therapy (CFOT), or serving on national committees such as those in the American Occupational Therapy Association (AOTA) or other related professional boards/organizations.

Excellent: During the period of review, the candidate has documented significant influence at a high level, whether it be service to students, the University, the community, or the profession. Excellence in professional service could be serving as an appointed member of an editorial board of a professional journal such as OTJR, AJOT, OR serving as an elected or appointed member of a professional board, for example, being elected or appointed to a position in POTAC, OTAC, CFOT, AOTA or other related professional boards/organizations.
